So This Were Best.

BY JOAQUIN MILLER.

It seems to me that Mother Earth Is weary from eternal toil, And weary from the endless strife
In all the agonies of birth, And down, at down, to it is best
That we should rest, that she should rest.
Let buffalo possess the land, Let flocks populate the towers,
And wild deer wander through the dunes.
Here we will laugh, nor lift a hand,
And laugh that man should ever care For flock, or field, or mansion fair.
No ship shall founder in the sea,
No widow fall in martial line, Nor minor perils in the night.
Here we shall rest beneath the trees, Where wife nor maid shall weep or wail,
For earth shall sleep, and all shall sleep.
I think we then shall all be glad,
At last I know we are not dead,
Not one, and even earth's weary Senses growing old and overcast.
Then fold your hands, for it were best
That we should rest, that she should rest.

VARIETY.

If you let the cat out of the bag never try to crum it back again; it only makes matters worse.
A clumsy-driven ordinance makes any man who shaves himself, in Des Moines, Iowa, on Sunday, liable to a fine of $5.

The man who thought he could do business without advertising has been completely given in.
His first advertisement was headed "Shirley's Sale."

A lad in Hartford, whose fifth birthday occurred recently, asked his parents if the school would keep on that day, adding, "they didn't on Washington's birthday."

"Who did hit me?" "Where's that lantern?"
"The old man," said the exclamation of a late-arrived Elmer darkey after being thrown something like an hundred feet by a locomotive.

HALF BOASTINGLY.—An Iowa paper half boastingly says that it starts on its sixth year with more subscribers who commenced with the first number, and have never paid a cent.

A curious discipline is enforced at revival meetings, where the reverend preachers notify to the speakers in the following: "If any man attempts to make a long speech, he will be sung down on the spot."

BEETLES.—The Tennyson of Indiana is responsible for the following poetic contribution:

Young man spare that beetle!
Touch not a single—
That woman's had an awful taste
To get herself into shape.

An unfortunate Kentucky editor thus addresses his delinquent subscribers: "Friends, we are penniless. Job's turkey was a millionaire compared with our treasury. To-day if salt was two cents a barrel, we could not buy enough to pickle a jay-bird."

A retired sea captain, who had made the tour of continental Europe and the Holy Land, was asked how he was impressed by his visit to Jerusalem.
"Jerusalem," said he, "is the nearest place I ever visited! There is not a man of liquor in the whole town fit to drink."

It is related of Mark Twain that a few months after his first baby was born, he was holding it on his knee. His wife said, "Now comes, Samuel, that you love the child?" "I can't do that," replied the humorist, "but am willing to admit that I respect the little thing for its father's sake."

Wise sayings of great men are very interesting reading, and the remark of the Mississippi Judge will be handed down among the sayings of eminent persons. Said he, spitting out a quid of tobacco, and taking a fresh one: "I haven't been judging a great while, but I think I can snatch justice baldheaded."

An inquirer after scientific information recently asked a Concord scientist, "What is this new disease—this Cero-Gordo-fina Macginnis the papers say so much about this?" It took as long for the apothecary to find out what the man was driving at, as it would have done to put up the longest prescription ever written.

Calling a spade a spade is well in theory but not always expedient in practice. A Philadelphian visiting his betrothed recently in Lancaster, called a coach dog a Dalmatian hound, and was promptly informed by the damsel that if he could not refrain from profanity in her presence they must henceforth be strangers.

It is said, in illustration of the great velocity of the winds in Wyoming Territory, that a gentleman in Cheyenne, looking his hat in the street, rushed to the telegraph office and telegraphed to Denver, Col., requesting that his hat might be stopped there, but was immediately informed that it had just gone by, traveling southward.

THE BEST METHOD.—Somebody having applied to an editor for a method by which he might cure his daughter of her partiality for young gentlemen, it is kindly informed that there are several methods of reform. The best is to put her in a well and drop a few loads of gravel on her head; or to bind her ankles to an anvil and upset her out of a boat.

HANDY.—Noah's Ark was doubtless considered a big ship among the ancients. A Philadelphian it might have carried two specimens of all creation at one time, would hardly do it now. According to Sir Isaac Newton's definition of a scriptural "cubic," the ark was 315 feet long, 85 broad, and 51 feet deep, while the Great Eastern steamship is 680 feet long, 83 feet broad and 60 feet deep.

CLOSED BUSINESS.—A colored firm in Newark, New Jersey, having suffered some pecuniary embarrassment, recently closed business, and the senior member gave to the public the following notice: "The dissolution of coparsnhip heretofore existing twixt me and Moses Jones in de barber profession am hereto resolved. Pussions who ome must pay de scriber. Dem what de firm ose must call on de firm is dissolved."

EXPOSITS IT.—The Danbury News says: "It is told of one of our citizens who has recently been made a father that he enjoys the hugely.
Being of a social turn he attends many parties, and on his departure places the sweet cherub in bed. On his return he gets into the place warmed by the darling, and puts the darling at the foot of the bed where he can keep his feet on it.
He says a cold room is the healthiest to sleep in, and that a register is not only a folly but a positive injury."

Suicide by charcoal fumes is a favorite means of self-destruction among the French, as all the world knows; occasionally the modes operate varies. A widower who has just suffered the usual irreparable loss, purchased a bushel of charcoal, stopped up every crevice in the chamber, threw himself on his bed, clutching the photograph of his wife, and awaited death. Twenty-four hours later the King of Terrors appeared at the foot of the bed in the shape of a policeman inquiring what was wrong with him in refusing to open his door. The intended suicide forgot to set fire to the charcoal!
